The great body of the Republican party would be gratified at any reference to the Whig and Mr. TUCKER: development which would help to fix upon the President a bargain of a corrupt nature Mr. Tucker's district regard him (and justly with southern Governors.

The protest of the Democrats and their failure to take any other earthly prize. If there ever was step whatever, together with the almost purpose of menacing his title, will disabuse the public mind and close is against the trick of the bloody Radicals.

President HAYES certainly is shrewdenough to understand these people. We have no doubt he has been able to see as deeply into the affair as BLAINE, and can hardly be cheated with "mouldy corn," or the "crocodile tears" of sympathy shed by such presses as the New York Tribune.

The Texas-Pacific.

Senator Johnston has achieved one thing: the postponement of the Texas-Pacific bill until the next session of Congress. His bill was an absurdity. It could not, we believe, have gotten ten votes in the Senate, and probably would not have gotten more than twenty in the House. It offered no earthly hope of what the South and the whole nation want-an independent continuous railway from the Mississippi to San way and land and money to five or more corporations-one of which was that of HUNTINGTON, JAY GOULD & Co .- and thus give them the monopoly of two trans-continental railways, and the whole Pacific coast besides. So under it there could be no independent railway. And even if the bill were to pass, it is not possible that the Texas-Pacific Company declared that that road is quite capable of accommodating the trans-continental trade tion considered. His proposition, if passed, and he has achieved that satisfaction which was won by the dog in the manger, who kept the hungry cow from eating some very good hay that would have been food and Commissioner Raum and Tobacco. Our Washington correspondent informs us that certain Philadelphia tobacco-men had, under "great alarm," telegraphed Commissioner RAUM, in Washington, asking, "Can the bill (tobacco tax) pass the Senate? Can anything be done by the dealers to prevent it?-i. e., its passage.

Now, it is a question important for the people to have answered, Is it proper that a Government officer shall use his power and influence with Congress to pass or defeat a measure involving immense private interests, and with regard to which large communities are in opposition to each other? These Philadelphia men write to Commissioner RAUM with entire intimacy. Has he not been helping their side, and giving as much as he can the power of the Government in their behalf? If the Secretary of the Interior approves this sort of intermeddling he does not understand his duty. We cannot believe that President HAYES would for a moment tolerate such interference. It would be a fearful odds had the people to fight the Government as well as those in opposition upon a question of expediency in legislation.

And Commissioner RAUM is expected to comfort these Philadelphians by advising them what to do-how to control the Senate of the United States! War on Repudiators.

[Lexington Gazette.] Many of our papers are urging silence in regard to the discussion of the State debt in the congressional canvass. They say that t has nothing to do with national questions which will engage the attention of Congress. This is true in one view of the case. honesty has been supposed to be an absolute requisite in any one offering to serve any district of this State in Congress. We hold that any man who favors a forcible readjustment of the State debt, or the repudiation of it, is at heart dishonest, and therefore totally unfit for any position of trust. In this view of the case, how a man stands on the debt question is all important, and a thorough ventilation of his record or opinions on that question is paramount to everything else. Let us be done with a defensive policy then. "The man behind the throne ' and his cohorts of blind followers ought to have such a showing this fall as would cause them to curse the day they were born, and in sackcloth and askes lament that they were so blind as ever to unite in a scheme to rob the old State of all that has been left her.
